PEACE OUR POLICY.

[From the Boston Advertiser.]

The late rumors of forthcoming trouble with Spain were of slighter texture than even such rumors usually are. An inkling of a correspondence going on between Washington and Madrid, an unexplained spurt of activity at one or two of the Government ship yards, and the idle talk of one or two garrulous officers of the Navy. That was about all there was to them. But slight as the occasion was, they called forth a response on all sides which showed that the country is in no mood for strife. In a just cause, there needs no parade of evidence to prove that strong arms and valiant and willing hearts would be ready at any warning to take care of the National honor. But in the existing relations of Cuba and Spain with the United States, the most fanatical devotee of Free Cuba will search in vain for a provocation sufficient to excite a ripple of military interest on the peaceful surface of public opinion.

While the universal response from the country was in favor of peace, there has been in some quarters a groundless assumption that the administration was tending in the other direction, or at least was experimenting upon the patriotism of the country, to see how far it would be safe to go in taking the risk of a war with Spain. We say the assumption is groundless, because not only is there no evidence of a serious difference of opinion between the two Governments, but the whole spirit of the foreign policy of both Governments, so far as it is known, has been such as to inspire the confidence of all who look upon peace as their true policy. Even at times of exceptional excitement, when the filibustering spirit has seemed to be getting the upper hand, the Government has been unmoved by it—guarding the rights of the Nation and its citizens faithfully, but taking care that Spain should have no just cause of complaint on account of the nature of our claims or of the manner of asserting them.

Indeed, the conduct of foreign affairs under the present administration is one of its chief glories. The State department has had to deal with many complicated and difficult questions, about which the most learned lawyers and statesmen have been divided at the moment of decision. But events have justified the department, without an exception noticeable enough to be remembered. A fact like this is not to be forgotten when rumors are current, the truth of which would imply not only a change of policy, but a change of character at the head of the State department.

The old rough and tumble element of San Francisco—which is a very respectable element as to numbers—is in session over a visit which one Ned McGowan is paying to that city after an absence of nine teen years. In the early days of San Francisco this Ned McGowan was an obnoxious word politician, bully, and ballot-box stuffer. During the reign of the mob he was elected to be Justice of the Peace and was ever after known as "Judge McGowan." When Casey was arrested for the assassination of James King of Williams, editor of the Evening Bulletin, in 1856, M. Gowan pistol with one barrel discharged, was found on Casey's person. In addition to this it was a matter of notoriety that Casey and McGowan were drinking friends and associates; and McGowan was suspiciously near at hand when the murder was committed. This enraged the formation of that historic Vigilance Committee. Casey was hanged, Judge McGowan escaped and for several months held on the recesses of the mountains of Southern California, subsisting on berries, roots, and occasional provisions purchased from Spanish ranchos when the vigilantes were not too close upon his track. Finally he escaped into Arizona, thence through New Mexico to New Orleans, and at last reached Philadelphia, his home from which place he returned to San Francisco a few days ago a gray-haired man of 60 years, and received his "perfect ovation" at the hands of those who nineteen years ago wanted to hang him. Such is life and especially in California.

A fresh attempt is being made in New York to secure the pardon of Frank Walworth who murdered his father in that city a few years ago and was sentenced to the Penitentiary for the crime. It is alleged that the young man is growing insane over his confinement, and many extenuating circumstances are presented which, it is claimed call for executive interference in his case. It will be remembered that the elder Walworth, who was a writer of some note, and who was separated from his family was in the habit of writing the latter threatening letters which were calculated to keep them in constant alarm. It was a favorite practice of that gentleman to open a vein in his arm, dip his pen in the blood and write these direful missives after which he would wrap them around bullets and send them to his wife. They breathed wholesale slaughter but were regarded by many as empty threats, and the trial of a brain diseased and hardly accountable. The son finally sought his father to remonstrate with him against sending such letters, and while defending himself, as he claims, against an attempt by the father, or what he thought an attempt upon his life, shot the latter dead at his feet. The jury thought the case a strong one and brought in a verdict of manslaughter. The attempt to obtain a pardon for the parricide will again arouse interest in the case, which was an altogether strange and tragic one.

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

Somebody says Whitelaw Reid will retire from the New York Tribune on the 1st of January, that he has had his resignation tendered to him. Sam Bowles has already nominated Charles Francis Adams to the place.

Gen Imboden was cowhided by Gen. Bradley T. Johnson, at the depot in Richmond, Va., Saturday night, the trouble growing out of an election dispute. Both are ex-rebel officers.

Louis Williams and Thomas S. Jackson, of New York, have started a paper called the Free Press, which they propose to make the national organ of the colored people of the United States. The first number was issued on Saturday last.

Paul du Chaillu is lecturing in New York. M. du Chaillu is the man who went into Africa and discovered the source of the human race.

The largest flouring mill in America is owned by Hon. C. C. Washburne, of Minneapolis, Minn. It is seven stories high, and crowded with machinery from top to bottom. Its cost was $300,000, has forty run of burrs, and turns out 1,000 barrels of flour per day.

Earl Russell is about to publish a pamphlet entitled "Is the Mohammedan Empire in Europe Worth Preserving?" That is a nice question for a statesman to ask at this stage of the game—after Turkey has been in a pickle for so many years.

THE LATE VICE-PRESIDENT.

TRIBUTES TO HIS WORTH AND HIGH PERSONAL CHARACTER.

[From the Boston Journal.]

Death never seems so sudden as when an apparently fatal sickness seems to have yielded to apparent recovery. Thus a week ago the death of Vice-President Wilson would not have been surprising at any moment, but now that it is sorrowfully announced, when we had supposed him rapidly returning to health and were looking for his reappearance among his old friends, the shock is almost bewildering. We need not say with what solemnity and unaffected sorrow the announcement of his death will be received in this community, of which the deceased was the just pride, with whose history he was largely linked, and for whose principles and glory he was the unswerving, indomitable, effective champion. Henry Wilson is gone, and his life as the representative of the "plain people" of New England in a momentous crisis, we shall never look upon again.

Mr. Wilson in 1856 openly espoused the Christian life by joining the Congregational Church in Natick. He thus founded a complete and well-poised character—one to which the young may ever turn for example and emulation. And when the American patriot, young or old, reviews the long roll of worthy public servants by whose successive efforts we have become what we are as a nation, he will find but few indeed who can outrank Henry Wilson.

[From the Boston Advertiser.]

The life and career of Henry Wilson is as grand an illustration of the value of the opportunities of free institutions as any on record. He was born to poverty, hardship and obscurity. By the force of native talent and indomitable will, he achieved a position among the highest in the land, and his fame is a part of the national glory and will be while the nation endures. * * *

A good, great man has departed. While he lived he toiled not in vain. The nation is richer for the example of such a career. He accomplished much, but nothing that he did is grander than his unselfish and blameless character.

[From the Boston Globe.]

Henry Wilson can scarcely be said to have passed the period of vigorous manhood, and but for the malady which had marked him for its victim, he might have before him many years of usefulness and possibly of his best thought and effort in behalf of his country's welfare. Many a man whose years outnumbered his has lived to furnish the ripest and richest fruit of a life-time spent in accumulating the treasures of study and experience. And yet his life seems full and rounded, not broken off as some have been with a half-completed mission and the possibility of great achievements barely revealed, leaving a sense of grievous loss and disappointment. The work for which he was best fitted came in his younger years and he had given to it his strength and his enthusiasm, and he was not called to go until he saw the fruits of his labor fully secured. * * * Few blemishes coming from defects of head or heart are to be found in his life, and he is one regarding whom the whole truth can be told without a violation of the injunction, de mortuis nil nisi bonum.

[From the Kennebec Journal.]

Another of the heroes of the anti-slavery struggle has passed from the scenes of this life. Henry Wilson, Vice-President of the United States, died yesterday morning in Washington. All readers of the papers have known of his recent sickness and the hopes expressed of his recovery. Alas! that the confidence thus inspired should so soon have gone out in disappointment and mourning as wide as the bounds of the nation.

In the death of Mr. Wilson we not only lament the decease of a man in high position, a statesman, patriot, citizen adorned with all the qualities that made him respected and beloved as neighbor and friend but one of those men whose name is rendered memorable for the distinguished part he acted in the great conflict which resulted in the overthrow of the Slave Power in this country. And what he was he made himself. Like Lincoln he sprang from the most humble position. Every step he took upwards was without assistance.

[From the Portland Press.]

The intelligence of the death of Henry Wilson, which took place in Washington yesterday morning, will be universally received in this country with profound regret. Mr Wilson was almost the last of the champions of freedom who headed the great fight against slavery in the stormy decade from 1850 to 1860. By his eminent services, wise counsel and high character, the people have delighted to honor him, and their grief at his death will be profound and sincere. He was certainly one of the most notable men of his time, and a noble representative of the higher and better type of American politicians.

[From the Portland Advertiser.]

While even Mr Wilson's best friends, perhaps, would not claim for him that he was the highest type of man, or that he was always the wisest and most judicious of counsellors in a political view, his force and honesty of character must be admitted and the fact that at several times during his experience as a public officer, he rendered signal service and help to the country. A character which could have found its way through so many layers of New Hampshire granite, could hardly be expected to preserve much delicacy of outline, but his rugged bravery aroused for man of less importance, and his record as a whole is honorable and creditable. Personally he was a warm and generous friend, never forgetting in prosperity that he had suffered in his youth, and always ready to extend a helping hand to the needy and the unfortunate. The nation is saddened today by his death; and it is a death well worthy of mourning.

[From the Lewiston Journal.]

He was a poor man when he entered upon the discharge of his Senatorial duties and he closed his career poor in worldly wealth. When the war broke out the accumulations of Henry Wilson amounted to some five hundred dollars. When the war closed he was some fifteen hundred dollars in debt. No sick soldier was ever left untasted for if his pecuniary means rendered it possible to afford relief. During his long trust of office, holding important chairmanships, he kept his integrity unsullied.

WHAT IT COSTS TO RAISE COTTON.—C. W. Howard, of Barlow county, Ga. has collected some valuable information on the cost of raising cotton. The first letter expresses the opinion that the planter can afford to raise cotton at 12½ cents per pound, unless there is a material alteration in the present system of farming. The second letter says "My farm is light, sandy loam, and with 130 to 200 pounds phosphate will average 200 pounds lint cotton. The cheapest cotton I ever made cost 9½ cents, and the highest 12 cents. I think the average about 11 3-10. In the estimate I charge nothing for personal services. Other opinions are as follows: One planter says, "I give you the cost for 7 years: 1866, 14 50; 1867, 12.50; 1868, 12 25; 1869, 16 90; 1870, 18 60; 1871, 13.61; 1872, 10 77. The average is 11.88. This includes interest on land, repairs, interest on teams, taxes, fertilizers, labor of picking and packing, but nothing additional for supervision." Another one writes: "I have carefully counted the cost of making cotton from 1866 to 1874, each year. In 1867 the cost per pound was 8½ cts.; 1867, 7½; 1868, 9½; 1869, 12½; 1870, 13½; 1871, 12½, 1872, 14½, 1873, 17½; and 1874, 14 cents.

It is announced that an official examination of the books, papers, wheel and tickets of the lottery of the so-called "Montpelier Female Humane Association," recently drawn at Alexandria, Va., shows that a glaring fraud has been practised on the ticket holders, but the guilty parties cannot be designated. This is the history of every such scheme, yet whenever a new project for swindling, endorsed by some far-off Governor or Ex-Governor, comes up, the fool-fisher again fills his net.

MAINE NEWS.

THE TEACHERS' CONVENTION.

Second Day—Increased Attendance—Interesting Exercises.

AUGUSTA, Nov. 23 The second day's session of the Maine state Educational Association this morning with an increased attendance and a deep interest. Various committees were appointed, after which a paper was presented by R. B. Mosher, Principal of the Saco High School, on "Present plan of study for high schools." He said that the material for study is not such as to fit children for ordinary schools. Instead of the cultivation of the perceptives, a training of the reasoning is attempted too much. Theory is small for office—practice is required. D. P. Patten, of Fortland, read a paper on "School Hygiene," including the subject of the proper ventilation of the school room. He warned against the practice of keeping open sessions all day. An able paper on "School Education was then read by Prof. F. F. Allen of the state College, which is to be followed by an Essay from Mr. R. Woodbury of Farmington, subject "We have so many poor teachers?" An Essay was on "Drawing" by J. M. Brookes of Pembroke, whose school in five specimens of drawing, the work of the pupils under his instruction. N. A. Luce was appointed State Editor for the New England Educational Journal. Prof. Orma Isaac of Bowdoin College presented the subject of natural sciences, claiming that the reason why there has not been so much study in the sciences in this state is because there has been a too close adhering of the text books and not much experimental work.

In the afternoon a paper of interest on "School Discipline" was read by A. F. Richardson, Principal of the High School in Bridgton, who claimed that the teacher ought to be able to govern himself and accomplish more from all deliberation, than discipline of the school room will be. The readings the most entertaining and interesting paper of the session was that read by Prof. A. H. Davis of Bowdoin College on "Industrial Reading." He took the ground that English literature was not properly taught in our schools, that a portion of the time could profitably be given to the best English classics without interfering with the regular studies.

Mrs. M. C. Fernald, of the State College Association, read a paper on the "Relation of Education to Labor," showing the necessity of training those who are to work with their hands, that education less as to its effects as to those who expect to follow the learned professions.

The after noon session closed with a brief address by Mr. A. H. Kelley, of Belfast, on the "Relation of the teacher to his employers."

The Senate Chamber was given up to the session of Drawings done by the schools of the schools of the state.

The evening's exercises began by the delivery of a practical and argumentative paper on "The qualification of teachers," by Dr. Sarah Pugh of the Johnson Normal School, Upsilanti. He took high ground and highly resulted standard for the profession to follow. Rev. Thomas Hill, D. D., President of Antioch Colleges, followed in a able and interesting address on "The Teaching of Natural Science in the Primary Schools, and even the younger scholars. Teaching thro' objects to form, color and substance is the most effective teaching. He asserted that children should be taught strictly scientific truths. A. P. Marble, Superintendent of schools, in Worcester, Mass., closed with the last essay of the evening, remarks in regard to the representation of Maine school material at the centennial. At the close Mr. Johnson, State Superintendent of Schools, gave a reception to the members of the Association at the house. The meetings have been unusually interesting.

There was a heated debate last night at the meeting of the association for improving the condition of the poor. It is stated that a deficiency of some $20,000 has been unearthed and the affair is to be investigated. It appears the Secretary is salaried at $3,500 per year, and is also secretary of two other charitable societies at high salaries, he being able to keep a coach and pair. The above society is one of the oldest in the city; pays the agents in each ward 10 per cent on all collections, and until the past few months has enjoyed the confidence of wealthy charitable citizens. Robert B. Minturn, Geo. F. A. Conkling and other eminent citizens have made the discoveries.

The Case of Avery.

The chief clerk of the Internal Revenue Bureau at Washington, indicted for complicity in the whiskey frauds here, was called in the U. S. District Court to-day, and both parties being ready to proceed, a jury was impannelled, and the trial commenced. The indictment contains four counts, charging that Avery had no knowledge of the fraudulent practices by Bevis & Fraser, wilfully failed to report the same for the purpose of aiding said firm in its practices, and conspired with McDonald, Joyce, Fitzroy, Bevis & Fraser, and Ulrici, to defraud the Government; also that in furtherance of the conspiracy, he and his co-conspirators did perpetrate the frauds for for which they were or are indicted.

Assistant Attorney B reopened the case for the prosecution, stating that its line of action and stating what it expected to prove.

O. S. Magruz was called to the stand as a witness. After two or three questions by the prosecution, objection by the defence, assailed the indictment saying it was defective and bad, as it did not properly show that Avery was an officer of the Government, the question turning upon the word "assistant." Judge Krum argued that it was not necessary to allege that Avery was an officer of the Government, if really a department. Judge Krum asserted that it is not, Gen. Henderson for the prosecution contending that it is.

The debate on the question continued nearly all the afternoon and 4th Circuit finally decided that the first and 4th counts in the indictment were bad, while the second and third were good. These counts contain the principal charge conspiracy to defraud the Government, and the trial will proceed to-morrow.

He has long been recognized as one of the most pleasing, interesting and instructive lecturers of the Lyceum. THE BUCKSPORT TOWN HALL, the initiatory steps to the building of which have already been taken, suggests to our correspondent at that place the remark which Theodore Tilton used in reference to the hall now called the Town Hall. Theodore was to speak on political issues in the hall and being introduced said that the ruins of ancient cities were full of suggestions to the student. "But this building reminds me of a venerable old barn." The people there are too enterprising to have that remark made again, although there are many villages in the State which can boast no better hall than this old one. Our correspondent says of the new structure:

No more "venerable barns," but a good nice hall, is what Buckport is to have. Mr. Jas. Emery has purchased, as you have stated, of Mr. E. H. Parker, the "Parker Block," and the adjoining lot and store formerly owned by Geo. W. Herbert, Esq., and has already commenced building a foundation in order to enlarge the present "Parker Hall" by making a broad hall case between the two buildings, some ten or twelve feet wide, with flight of stairs to gallery, a wash room, etc. He will strip the roof from the hall, raise the walls and put on a modern style roof, making the hall some 28 or 30 feet higher, with many other improvements, such as a nice gallery, convenient stage, ante-rooms, and wash-room; frescoed ceilings, etc., making just what we have long been wanting. It will also be a great saving to the town, as they would have been obliged to either build a new town house or repair the old one, and as the town voted in use of new hall for their meetings, if one was built, it is an encouragement to Mr. Emery, whom we think will build a hall that will be a credit to the town. J. W.

Tar acts directly on the mucous membranes, and is therefore adapted to chronic cases of Catarrh, Consumption, Bronchitis and Kidney complaints. You will find a "Forest Tar Book" at the druggists'. It will give you the history of Tar, and the pure article called "Forest Tar," and its uses.

OYSTER SALOON AND RESTAURANT,

No. 81 Main Street, with all the Stock, Fixtures, Furniture and good will.

This stand has been occupied for the past 10 years as a saloon, and for the past eight years by the present occupant, and is doubtless one of the most desirable and best located Eating Houses in the city. It has a very large and profitable run of business, and can be shown to be paying well at the present time. Has a Ladies' Dining Saloon and private rooms on the second floor. Is well fitted up with the most modern appliances for cooking, &c., and is the best advertised restaurant so can hardly fail to make very large returns for a moderate investment. Will be sold on very favorable terms as Private Sale if applied for before, but will be positively sold at auction as above, unless previously sold, as the plant of the late owner must be closed up.

For full information, apply to JOHNSON, at the Saloon, where an inventory of Stock, &c., will be ready for examination two days before sale.

ABOUT HUSBANDS—TO THE "GIRLS."

A man is, in general, better pleased when he has a good dinner upon his table than when his wife speaks Greek.—Sam Johnson.

Johnson was right. I don't agree to all
The solemn dogmas of the rough old sinner,
But very much approve what one may call
The minor morals of the "Great Moreo."

Johnson was right. Although some men adore
Wisdom in woman, and with wisdom cram her,
Three-quarters on 'em less than thinks the more
Of his own grub than of his spouse's grammar.

I know it is the greatest shame in life;
But who among them (save, perhaps, myself)
Deserving scorn, but asks his wife,
What salad—not books—she has upon the shelf?

Through Greek and Latin he the lady's beset,
They're little valued by her loving mate,
The kind of tongue that husbands relish most
Is mutton, boiled and served upon a plate.

Or if, as fond ambition may command,
Some home-made verse the happy matron show him,
What mortal spouse but from her dainty hand
Would sooner see a pudding than a poem?

Young lady,—keep in love with Tom or Harry—
The said Tom can't reach a tale so high,
But here is the moral of it:
Do not marry,
Or, marrying, take your lover as he is.

A very Man—with something of the brute
Unless he proves a sensual, sordid soul;
With passions strong and appetite to boot,
A thirsty soul within a hungry body.

A very man—not one of nature's clods—
With human failings, whether saintly suaver,
Endowed, perhaps, with genius from the gods,
But apt to take his temper from his dinner.

An Impregnable Position.

Among American remedies, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters occupies what may not inaptly be termed an impregnable position. The foundations of its popularity are laid so deep in the public confidence, its excellence has been so frequently and conclusively demonstrated under the most trying circumstances, and it has been so long known to the public as a standard article, that neither the sieve so cautiously cast upon proprietary medicines, nor the attempts of certain inadvisable nostrum vendors to create a prejudice against a preparation with a spurious basis, can affect it. The public recognizes in it a safe, agreeable and comprehensive alterative and an invaluable general tonic, a speedy remedy for inveterate disorders, and their most reliable preventive. Its reputation is founded as it were, upon a rock. d&ewlw, nov19

From the Maratime Sentinel

AMHERST, Nova Scotia, Jan 28, 1875

We would call the attention of our readers to the advertised in another column. We do this having experience in the matter. Being dreadfully afflicted as to the results promised, we gave unused a bottle of the cure for a friend of ours, who was much troubled in the hands. Hardly three months have elapsed, after using a single bottle, and she has not had a recurrence of rheumatic attack although previously she suffered with it almost constantly.

We scarcely could hope her to be cured from using only one bottle, but it has convinced us that it is a sovereign remedy. We believe a couple of bottles more will effect a permanent cure, and would urge our readers to give it a trial.

J. B. WOODLAND, Editor

All Who Have Used It Will Believe This.

PORTLAND, Nov 14, 1875

Prof. Alphonse Hidier, Dear Sir,—I wish to add my testimony to the efficacy of the valuable medicine called the having been under treatment of it for a few days. I think it is truly wonderful the effect it has had in so short a time upon myself. I would recommend it to all others now suffering from rheumatism. I have an abiding faith that the medicine will do all it is recommended to do.

Diamond Rheumatic Cure,

Thankfully yours,

Miss S. B. WATERMAN,

Cumberland Street

This medicine is prepared by skeentific, experienced and conscientious physicians, in obedience to the decree of nature, and is found in the woods and among the people. Every bottle is warranted to contain the full strength of its medicine to the highest state of purity and excellence, and is superior to any medicine ever compounded for this terrible complaint.

In simple cases sometimes one or two doses suffice. In the most chronic cases it is sure to give relief by the use of four or five bottles. By this efficient and simple remedy, hundreds of dollars are saved to those who can least afford to throw it away, as merely as it is by the purchase of useless prescriptions.

The Diamond Rheumatic Cure is for sale at all the druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the wholesale druggists in Boston, Worcester, Portland, Bangor and other places

In the Supreme Judicial Court, begun and held at Bangor, within and for the County of Penobscot, on the first Tuesday of October, A. D. 1875.

Lois B. Webber, of Wiun in the County aforesaid, respectfully libels said respondent, that she was lawfully married to Jeremiah D. Webber, at Chester, in the County aforesaid, on the second day of March, A. D. 1857; that she has had by him two children, boys, of whom are living, four years old next March, viz.: Abbie L. Webber and Charles O. Webber; that libellant has always conducted herself toward her said husband as a faithful wife should, and has been in all respects a kind and affectionate mother to said children; that said husband, regardless of his marriage covenants, has from time to time during the past few years, conducted himself toward his married life extremely unpleasant and one of great hardship; that he has repeatedly treated her with great cruelty, using toward her language indecent and profane language, even in the presence of his family and others, that he has repeatedly accused her of the crime of adultery, and many times threatened the accusation to people outside of his family, thus attempting unjustly to degrade her, and to injure her good reputation; that he has many times threatened to kill himself and her, that he has admitted that he has committed the crime of adultery with certain lewd women so your libellant is informed, that on committed the crime of adultery is the summer of fall of 1873 with a certain lewd woman as your libellant is informed, and believes, that said woman is dead; that he has cruelly, abusively and indecently treated her, because, that since the time in May, A. D. 1875, he refused longer to live with him as his wife, and since that time has not, that once before she was compelled to leave him on account of his abusive and indecent conduct toward her, and remain from him absent seventeen months, that such is his temper, disposition and conduct that she can no longer live with him in peace and happiness, that sometime in November, A. D. 1873, he left said Wiun, and went, as your libellant supposes, to California or Oregon, and since he left, she has resided in Wiun aforesaid with her family and provided for their support without his aid. That she supposes the said Jeremiah to be somewhere in California; that she has used reasonable diligence to ascertain his present place of residence and has failed to learn it, and that it is unknown to her.

Wherefore and because she believes it to be reasonable and proper, conducive to domestic harmony and consistent with the peace and morality of society, your libellant prays this Honorable Court to decree a divorce from the bonds of matrimony, and that the said Lois B. Webber may be forever barred from all rights of dower in the estate of said libellant, and such other and further relief in the premises as the nature of the case may require, and as to this Court may seem meet.
